Best Practice of Dr. Ram Rode College

Title: Empowering Women through Tradition: Distribution of Saris to Needy Women during Navratri 2024

Objectives:

1. To support and empower underprivileged women in the community by providing them with traditional attire during the Navratri festival.
2. To promote the values of cultural heritage and Indigenous Knowledge Systems (IKS) by emphasizing the importance of traditional clothing.
3. To foster community engagement and social responsibility among students and faculty.

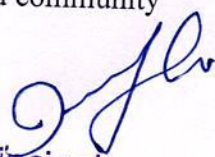

Context:

Navratri is a significant festival in Indian culture, celebrated with much fervor, especially among women. Traditional attire, such as saris, plays a crucial role in the festivities. However, many women in the community face economic hardships, making it difficult for them to afford these traditional garments. This initiative aligns with the college's mission to contribute to societal welfare and uphold cultural values through the support of IKS.

Practice:

1. Planning and Coordination:

- The college established a committee consisting of faculty, students, and community representatives to organize the event.
- The committee identified needy women through local NGOs and community centers.

- Awareness sessions were held to educate participants about the significance of saris in Indian culture and IKS.

3. Distribution Event:

- The distribution event was held on the first day of Navratri, fostering a festive atmosphere with traditional music and dance.
- Each woman received a sari along with information about the cultural significance of the attire, including traditional draping styles and the role of saris in various regional customs.

4. Community Involvement:

- Local artisans and weavers were invited to demonstrate traditional sari draping techniques, promoting IKS and empowering them by showcasing their skills.
- Students volunteered to assist in the event, enhancing their social responsibility and awareness of community issues.

Outcomes:

1. Empowerment of Women:

- Over 150 needy women received saris, promoting their participation in the Navratri festivities.
